Dear Friends,

If there is one word that would describe the past year at the CPD it would be “change”. New personnel, new offices, new projects, and even our new website all reflect the many positive changes that have occurred over the past year.

In March 2018, our clinical and classroom-based programs moved into the Sorenson Legacy Foundation Center for Clinical Excellence. These new classrooms and clinics allow us to offer our clients state-of-the-art interdisciplinary services under a single roof, and provide new opportunities for collaborative program development. Additionally, staff from the Technical Assistance for Excellence in Special Education (TAESE) program, which has been located off-campus for over 25 years, moved into the CPD building in May 2018.

We have also seen many changes in our staff. Several staff members retired, and we all mourned the untimely passing of Gordon Richins, our longtime colleague, friend, and community liaison. Over 20 new staff members were added, bringing energy and expertise to our early intervention, employment, aging, technical assistance, and independent living programs.

Program growth is an element of change that remains constant from year to year. The CPD is Utah’s federally designated University Center for Excellence in Developmental Disabilities (UCEDD). As such, we have a mandate to develop innovative programs that improve the lives of children and adults with disabilities and their families. The CPD ended this past fiscal year with 120 different projects, and approximately $17.3 million dollars in total funding (a $1 million increase over FY 2017). We are looking forward to continuing this trend of innovative program development.

We remain dedicated to our mission to create inclusive communities and to improve the lives of people with disabilities of all ages through sustainable innovation, collaborative research, responsive service, and interdisciplinary training and education. As Margaret Mead said many years ago: “Never doubt that a small group of thoughtful, committed citizens can change the world.”

Thanks to your ongoing support and engagement with our programs, we are making a difference. I truly believe that the CPD is changing the world for the better.
OUR MISSION

We are working together to create inclusive communities and improve the lives of children and adults with disabilities and their families through sustainable innovation, collaborative research, responsive service, and interdisciplinary training and education.

FY 2018 BUDGET: $17,336,918

The CPD is Utah’s University Center for Excellence in Developmental Disabilities (UCEDD), a network of 67 federal organizations that work with state and local government agencies and community providers on disability issues. Funds for CPD projects come from a variety of sources, including grants, contracts, fees, and donations.

During FY 201, the CPD operated over 100 diverse projects, all addressing disability issues through direct services, training, research, information dissemination, and technical assistance.

REMEMBERING GORDON
A SOFT SPOKEN MAN WITH A POWERFUL VOICE

GORDON RICHINS, our dear colleague, advocate and friend, passed away on February 11, 2018. He leaves a hole at the CPD, and in many other places where his influence was felt. He served on multiple boards and committees at local, state and national levels, always lending his voice to the support people with disabilities.

Richins was a farmer until 1987, when a heavy bale of hay hit him in the back of the neck. He was instantly paralyzed and spent months in rehabilitation before he was able to sit in a wheelchair.

Richins went on to earn a college degree in agricultural business, and in 1996, he came to the CPD as its consumer liaison.

“I will remember Gordon as a rare individual whose experiences in life touched and taught many others,” said Sarah Rule, a former CPD director. “He said that after his accident and a long period of coming to terms with the resulting disability, he chose to live actively, and set out to do just that. On his way, he guided others to find ways to do the same.”

He served on the boards of many organizations, and he often took his advocacy to the public at large. He granted numerous interviews to local media on disability issues, from snow removal to housing to transportation to employment of people with disabilities. He was a mentor to many and he will be missed on local and national levels.

Center for Persons with Disabilities

The CPD seeks to create inclusive communities and improve the lives of children and adults with disabilities of all ages through sustainable innovation, collaborative research, responsive service, and interdisciplinary training and education. Our vision is to become an international leader in creating inclusive communities and improving the quality of life for people with disabilities and their families. As a unit in the Emma Eccles Jones College of Education and Human Services, we work hard to achieve the following:

- We Innovate: We lead by developing dynamic, sustainable, forward-thinking programs and services.
- We Include: We demonstrate how effectively we work toward inclusive communities in our planning, programs, and services. We celebrate diversity in ability, race, ethnicity, culture, language, gender, sexual orientation, politics, and religion.
- We Collaborate: We forge partnerships. Working together makes us more effective and responsive to the current needs of our clients and communities.
- We Care: We do what we do because we care. We are making the world a better place for people with disabilities and their families.

CPD Blog

- Poverty Is a State of Mind

  During a conversation with Kim, the Costco/Ameriprise lady who was helping me save money, I shared that I was writing a book. The Art of Poverty. “Poverty is a state of mind,” I said. She agreed and added: “You may be broke, but you’re never poor.”
